Urban Underground

Mission: Urban Underground is advancing a new generation of leaders committed to building safe and sustainable communities. We advance our mission through effective and age appropriate programs, strategic partnerships, and youth-led civic engagement campaigns in the areas of health, education, public safety, and community justice. Our programs establish key pipelines for youth leadership, help groups broaden their definitions of diversity and inclusion, and create educational models relevant to today's youth.

Introduction: Urban Underground (U^2) was started in January of 2000 by a team of youth and adults who wanted to create a bridge for young people to connect their intelligence and energy to positive community change. Since its start, over 4,000 teens have submitted applications to join Urban Underground, over 500 have participated in the Youth Empowerment Program (YEP), and over 6,500 youth across the country have been touched by Urban Underground workshops, programs, and events.

The Urban Underground YEP provides high school-aged youth with the opportunity to develop leadership skill in an environment that promotes diversity, teamwork, and creativity. The YEP is open to all high school students with an interest in public sector careers including but not limited to: political science, criminal justice, social work, community organizing and/or education.

Workshop:

Know Your Rights: Training Day- This workshop educates young people about their rights and responsibilities during encounters with law enforcement. Interactive activities are used to teach youth how to demand fair and just treatment from law enforcement. Objectives: 1) Teach young people about the three types of police encounters. 2) Explore the role of police within communities of color. 3) Teach participants how to document and fight police brutality.

Addendum for KYR Bust Cards:

In 2004, the Supreme Court upheld a statute that made it a crime for a person to refuse to identify himself to a police officer if the police officer had “reasonable suspicion” to believe the person may have committed a crime. Hiibel v. Judicial District Court of Nevada, 124 S. Ct. 2451 (2004). Wisconsin has no such “stop & identify” statute, and in Henes v. Morrissey, 194 Wis. 2D 338 (1995), the Wisconsin Supreme Court held that refusal to identify was not grounds for an obstruction of justice charge.

TRUE Skool explores how the elements of graffiti and Hip Hop have been used as art forms to voice social justice. Throughout history, graffiti has been used as a communication tool and a voice for the unseen and unheard. Learn how the First Amendment protects these important American traditions. We will continue the dialogue through a hands on art activity.

How can you use art to create change?

- Murals can represent a positive message and transform and beautify your neighborhood or school. Talk to local businesses, your school or community groups to find legal walls. Work with your neighbors, businesses, and youth to create an image that represents a positive message and that will help transform and beautify the area.

- T-Shirts, Clothing, Hats, etc. Print screening is an easy and affordable way to create fashions to wear and to use as a platform to voice issues. This is also a great way to make a few bucks!

- Installations. Work through your local art organizations to create public works of art, such as sculptures, temporary installations of art, etc.

- Organize. Work with likeminded people and use art to express your feelings, organize art shows or block parties that allow you to display and sell your artwork, while at the same time using various forms of art to make attendees aware of issues affecting the community.

TRUE Skool’s mission is to use the urban arts as a tool to engage youth in social justice and humanities education.

FREE SPEECH AND T-SHIRT PRINTING

Wearing Your Opinions on Your Sleeve: Political Art and Wearable Expression

A short history of political art in America

Political art in the United States has had a long, rich history. Some examples we might recognize include:

- Benjamin Franklin’s “Join Or Die” graphic, cited as the first political cartoon
- Political graphics were important in swaying opinion around important events like the civil war, abolition and women’s suffrage, especially with changing technology around printing and newspaper publication
- Early 20th century wars combined simple messages and bold prints in war propaganda (Uncle Sam and Rosie the Riveter)
- As printing technologies became more affordable and accessible in the 1960s-80s, social justice (women’s rights, civil rights, gay rights, AIM, etc.) and anti-war movements used screen printing and mimeographs to create their own publications (and buttons, signs, t-shirts) which included lots of strong graphics
- Cable television and the Internet have made our society more visually-saturated. The corporatization of media has widened the gap between high-budget production and local, grassroots

Students have the right to express themselves - even at school

In an important US Supreme Court case called Tinker v. Des Moines Independent Community School District, the court ruled that students’ right to free expression is not something they leave behind at the “schoolhouse gate.” The case was about young students (13-16 years old!) who chose to wear black armbands at school to protest the Vietnam War. Their school’s principal told them that wearing the armbands would provoke a disturbance and asked the students to remove them. They refused and were suspended, but with legal help challenged the suspension all the way to the top court.

Other important court decisions that limit student expression include the Hazelwood School District v. Kuhlmeier case which said that school administrators do have the power to limit student expression in school newspapers, however if students produce their own underground newspapers or zines they can be distributed (you could only get in trouble if the school can prove that the zine content has disrupted school or has indecent content). Another case, Bethel School District No. 403 v. Fraser, said that profanity was not constitutionally protected student speech. But what happens if a student uses curse words in a political statement?
Recent examples of challenged student expression

Bong Hits 4 Jesus – The most recent US Supreme Court decision (Morse v. Frederick) that has challenged student expression was in Juneau, Alaska when a student unfurled the infamous “Bong Hits 4 Jesus” banner during an event to watch an Olympic torch-bearer run past their school. The banner was off school property, but the Principal (Morse) and the student (Frederick) got into a conflict and the student was suspended. The suspension was challenged in court and the court found that the “pro-drug” message of the banner was offensive, disruptive and conflicted with the anti-drug educational efforts of the school.

Impeach Bush t-shirt – Students wearing clothing that is critical of politicians is nothing new. However in 2003, a student asserted his right to wear a t-shirt with a picture of President Bush titled “International Terrorist” when doing a report on current events. The case went to a district court in Michigan that protected the student’s right to wear the shirt. Another case in 2004 was less clear when a student wore a shirt with the President’s picture on it along with pictures of drugs and alcohol, alluding to Bush’s former substance use. The political content of the shirt was protected, however the drug and alcohol depictions were not.

Awesome God song – in 2005, a second grader wanted to sing a song with religious content in a voluntary after-school program. The school administrators didn’t let her. In the court case, her choice of song was defended on the grounds that the school allowed students to choose their own song which wasn’t the same as the school’s endorsement of a religion. In this case, a student’s right to freedom of expression and of religion was protected.

Materials:

1. X-acto blade
2. Blades
3. Material for stencil: (options listed below)
   - Cardboard box liners – this material is ideal. It is inexpensive and comes in a variety of sizes. The thickness is not too difficult to cut and it is durable. Online it can be ordered through U-Line (www.uline.com)
   - Manila file folders — they most commonly come in two sizes, for letter (8 1/2” x 11”) and legal (8 1/2"x14”) size papers. Unfolded they can make a good size stencil. They are easy to cut through, hold together well with highly detailed images, and will absorb paint.
   - Other cardboard — like cereal boxes, corrugated cardboard, and other packaging cardboard can be used as well. Though they are harder to cut through and won’t last as long as the file folders, they are found in varying sizes to suit the demands of different sized projects.
   - Poster Board — like the kind you used for those school projects in elementary school, works well when making larger stencils and easy to cut through
   - Plastics — Acetate, Mylar, laminating paper, etc. These are really easy to cut through and can create minute details. Not really good for putting stuff up in the public because they’re flimsy and the paint drips off them after a bunch of sprays. Mylar, is another option but, is pricey and comes in rolls or in 3×4 sheets, get the .05mil.
   - Magnets – this material is expensive but ideal for metal surfaces.
4. Silkscreen ink
5. Surface for printing (paper, t-shirts, magnets, etc)
6. Tape
7. Sponges or flat brushes
Making Stencils:

1. Spend time thinking about your image idea/concept.

2. Design your image in a sketchbook or computer program. Consider how your image is going to be placed in the public. Is it a stencil on paper that will be posted in the public? Tacked to a bulletin board? Attached to a telephone pole? Wheat-pasted to a boarded up building? Could your print be on sticker paper? Could the image also be posted on-line, on a website?

3. Draw image onto the stencil material. (make sure that there are bridges or tabs to keep the image as one sheet of paper, or so that the image doesn’t fall apart.)

4. Cut out the stencil.

5. Tape the image to the surface that you want to print.

6. Slowly, carefully tap or blot ink onto the stencil openings. NOTE: do not rub or scrub ink. It can tear the stencil or place ink under the stencil.

7. When completed, leave the stencil set and dry. NOTE: removing the stencil can cause ink to smear or stain unwanted areas.

8. When dry, remove stencil

9. Place dry t-shirt inside out into the dryer for 30 minutes on high to set the ink permanently

Writing Prompts

I am seen as… But am really…

I want you to know that…

I am most powerful when…

I use the tool of…

Imagine you had the people that make decisions for you to be able to not speak, but just listen, what would you tell them?

you can be (r)evolutionary everyday.
the stories you choose to share. the conversations you choose to have.
you are as powerful as you allow yourself to be.
embrace you. get free.
Always read your school’s handbook or conduct code. It is like a Constitution for your school and you can learn about what is allowed and not allowed and different levels of disciplinary actions.

What does it mean to have a right to privacy?
The Fourth Amendment of the US Constitution guarantees anyone in the United States the right to be free from unreasonable searches and seizures from the government. Outside of a classroom, police should have either a specific warrant to make a search or they should have a clear reason to search you (“probable cause”) where they believe that you have been involved in breaking the law.

What does this mean for students?
Privacy rights in schools are different than in your home or on the streets because public schools have a higher standard of protecting all students’ safety. In school, warrants are not necessary and the probable cause rule doesn’t apply to teachers or your principal (although police should always abide by it). But if school officials do search you, they must at least have “reasonable grounds” for doing the search that they suspect will produce something that is against school rules (weapons, drugs, etc.).

What exactly does “reasonable grounds” or reasonable suspicion mean?
Unfortunately there is no clear boundary for this definition. But school officials should be able to describe their common sense need to do the search: it can’t be based on a hunch, a baseless rumor, or simple curiosity. Also your expectation of privacy becomes less important when the seriousness of the search gets more intense.

If they ask to search me, what should I say?
We all have the right NOT to consent to any search of our bodies or belongings. If you do give consent to a search, remember that anything they find can be used against you (whether stuff actually belongs to you or not!). If you consent to a search when the official does not have reasonable grounds to search, anything they find can still be used against you. If you do not consent to a search, speak up in a clear voice and say “I do not consent to a search.” Even if you think a search is unjustified, never physically resist a search. This can be used against you too.

What other basic things should I know about searches?
- a school official can use your previous behavior as a part of reasonable grounds for an immediate search
- a school official can never strip search a student – it is against state law, anyone doing a search that involves contact with your body should be of your same sex if at all possible
- a school official can only use physical force on a student if absolutely necessary to stop a disturbance, prevent injury, protect property or remove a disruptive student – hitting or shoving a student out of frustration is illegal police officers in schools should get the principal’s permission to search a student unless it is an emergency situation (i.e. suspicion of a weapon) school security guards and designated educational resource are considered the same as school officials and only need reasonable grounds to search; police are still bound by legal requirements of police officers the search’s purpose and boundaries should be made clear at the beginning of the search – no one should be looking through your wallet for a gun or under your skirt for a cell phone anything that comes up in a search can be used against you in both school disciplinary proceedings and a criminal court (especially if police officers are present) school property should be defined in your handbook and usually includes the building, parking lot, school buses and athletic facilities – most courts tend not to extend school authority in the property around the school

What about lockers?
Student lockers, desks and other storage areas in the school are considered school property and can be searched without the consent of the student or even suspicion by the school official. Check the written school policies about locker searches. Many students ask about the “lack of individualized suspicion” or when schools conduct searches of all of the school lockers. Courts have issued conflicting decisions on whether or not this is fair or a violation of privacy rights.

Can they keep what they find in a search?
Illegal, unauthorized or inappropriate items may be confiscated. If the school has a rule that says something isn’t allowed, they can keep it when they search you. This gets tricky when there are rules against having cell phones or electronic items in school. Know the school rules before you bring things to school and whether or not you can get these items back at the end of a school day. Illegal items like drugs or weapons will never be returned.

What about my bag, purse, jacket or other personal items?
You do have an expectation of privacy over your personal belongings, but the reasonable suspicion rule still applies. Your bag can be searched, but the school official needs a good reason.

Remember:
You always have the right not to consent to a search
You always have the right to remain silent
You always have the right to demand an advocate (parent, guardian, lawyer) if you are being accused of a crime.

 WARNING

School and police officials have NO OBLIGATION to contact parents before questioning you. Contact your parent or attorney.

What the American Civil Liberties Union says about student rights: “School officials shouldn’t be able to violate your rights just because they don’t like your sexual orientation. However, even though a few states and cities have passed laws against sexual orientation discrimination, public high schools have been slow to establish their own anti-bias codes and they’re slow to respond to incidents of harassment and discrimination. So while in theory, you can take a same-sex date to the prom, join or help form a gay group at school, or write an article about lesbian/gay issues for the school paper, in practice gay students often have to fight hard to have their rights respected.”

What to know about starting a Gay-Straight Alliance:

GSAs, also known as Gay-Straight Alliances or Gender & Sexuality Alliances, are student-run school clubs that work to create a safe and inclusive environment for all students regardless of sexual orientation and gender identity.

To start a GSA at your school:

1. Explain why you need a GSA—If you are concerned with harassment, or are looking for social, supportive or educational opportunities, write down why you need a GSA.

2. Read your student handbook—The details for starting a school club should be in your student handbook which is like the Constitution for your school. Any school that allows noncurriculum-related clubs must allow GSAs. GSAs must be student initiated and attended.

3. Identify a teacher to be your advisor—Teachers can be your champions! Find one that you trust to support you, even if an advisor isn’t required.

4. Work with your school’s administration for approval—The administration should understand laws about student clubs, but some may argue that groups must be in line with school policies on educational mission, student conduct or sex ed, religious beliefs in private schools. But under the Equal Access Act, all groups should have access to funding, media attention, physical space like other groups.

5. Keep records!—Fill out any forms required, write a mission statement, and keep notes on your communications and meetings with the school. If you have problems, your notes can help explain what happened.

Other things to consider:

- If people try to stop you from forming a GSA, remember that the law is on your side!

- Outside complaints from parents, students, teachers, donors, etc. cannot stop a GSA from forming.

- The ACLU of Wisconsin or GSA for Safe Schools can help. Contact them for support.

Dealing with harassment Schools are legally obligated to consider all claims of harassment equally. Any of the amendments and acts listed below can be sited to protect LGBTQI students from harassment and discrimination. Schools that fail to take action in these situations often are held liable and may face legal consequences.

Same-gender prom dates Although many schools may have restrictions around same-sex or same-gender dates at the prom, the First Amendment could be used to challenge these restrictions. Schools may try to justify such restrictions by saying that they are seeking to protect LGBTQ couples from harassment or that LGBTQ couples would distract from the school’s educational objectives. However, restricting extra-curricular events are harder to justify under that kind of reasoning.

Dress codes School rules around dress codes must have a reasonable relationship to the school’s educational objectives. Schools can sometimes justify unequal restrictions with the argument that dress codes protect students’ safety, encourage discipline, lessen distractions from learning, and promote community values. While dress codes try to nurture an effective and safe learning environment, any dress codes that restrict expression based on sex or gender could be a violation of Title IX or the Constitution.

Choosing when to disclose your sexual orientation or gender identity You have a right to privacy including information about your personal life. Teachers, administrators, staff, and parents have no right to disclose your sexual orientation or gender identity for any purpose without your consent. Many schools have enacted anti-discrimination policies to ensure that LGBTQI students are not met with bias or discrimination in their learning environment.

You have legal protection under the following amendments and acts:

- The First Amendment allows for freedom of expression and speech,
- The Fourteenth Amendment allows for equal protection,
- Title IX bans sex discrimination, which can sometimes apply to LGBTQI youth,
- The Equal Access Act allows LGBTQI students access to the same resources and rights,
- Your right to privacy protects any information about your sexual orientation or gender identity,
- The Hate Crimes Prevention Act now includes actual or perceived gender, sexual orientation, gender identity, and disability along with race, color, religion, and national origin under its protection.

Poetry, Politics, and Power

The personal is political. Poets have died for their words. Poets have been jailed for their words. Poets have been censored and/or banned. To speak truth is controversial in times of war and when civil liberties are threatened. We will read and examine poets in the United States and the world who have moved society forward through their words and actions; sometimes at the risk of their own lives or livelihood.

There will be poetry presentations by local Milwaukee poets: Angie Trudell Vasquez, Alida Cardos Whaley and Kavon Jones.

Angie Trudell Vasquez is a poet, writer, activist and publisher. Her poems and writings have appeared on stage and in print nationally and internationally. Most recently, she was a featured poet for Fighting Bob Fest in fall 2014. She received a Voices Award from Planned Parenthood in 2013. By day, she works for the ACLU of Wisconsin as their Office Manager and Volunteer Coordinator. She has published two books of poetry under her own press Art Night Books. She edited and published the magazine, Revolution and Reclamation, in Spring 2014, and plans to put out another issue in Spring 2015. There will be a call for poems, short stories, micro tales and art work in February 2015. If you are interested, friend Art Night Books on FB for the official announcement.

Alida Cardós Whaley is a mama, poet, and performing artist. She is a core organizer with STITCH Milwaukee, seeking to create spaces to heal our people and realize our dreams. By day she is an advisor at the UW-Milwaukee, she studied Latin American, Caribbean and Iberian Studies at UW-Madison where she was a member of First Wave. She cofounded STITCH in 2009. STITCH Milwaukee is a collective of gente working to create spaces where our whole selves are recognized, celebrated, and offered healing and nourishment. Originally from Milwaukee, she graduated from Rufus King High School.

Kavon Jones (KJ Prodigy) graduated from Riverside University High School in 2013. He has had nearly 30 features with UW-Milwaukee, Marquette University, Downtown Books, Woodland Pattern, City Hall, etc. He competed in Brave New Voices Poetry Competition in Philadelphia in Summer 2014 with Stillwater Collective. Last spring, he did an artist residency at Escuela Vieau for poetry with 8th graders. He has legal observed and volunteered with the ACLU of Wisconsin. He has also volunteered or worked with the Milwaukee Public Theatre, Diverse & Resilient, the Reproductive Justice Collective and UMOS. He has been hosting the Miramar Open Mic.
Some people’s history is bound in books; can be found in historical non-fictions about someone they can identify with; someone they can idolize, who has similar features, same skin tone. Some folks are shown images of their people over and over and the images embrace them and they dream.

Some people dream of the stories that came before them that they’ll never know because their grandmother’s grandma couldn’t write and didn’t need to until men came to write her out of his story.

I am as far as my ancestors got into the future. I don’t know their names, but I acknowledge their existence. We all come from a people a place a story.

Where do you hold yours; Is it here right now, with you Has it arrived Have you

We have to start somewhere We have to hold on to something Before we lose everything History is like that.

Floating piece of fuzz in the wind-like We have to catch it Keep it before it disappears and nobody remembers.

Some people’s history has been recorded in leather bound books protected by libraries with alarm systems and shelves upon shelves upon dirt.

Some people’s is still sitting there in the soil where it was forgotten because the victor writes about victory and there is no narrative for one not ego enough to call them self Master, to claim ownership of land, to kill a peoples; to invade, to bring weapon, to be blind to everything they think they are fighting for; to write books to make sure that their face and those with similar features same skin tone, to make sure that their story And their victory are fabric of future.

Some people will never find their story in their surroundings Some people will craft themselves from the remnants of what they’ve been passed down Some people will storytell until they feel full whole enough.

We are pieces of fuzz floating by Will you take hold of your self Tell your story.

By Alida Cardós Whaley * *(Poem first appeared in Revolution & Reclamation, published by Art Night Books 2014)
“Today, we will write our own stories, in the form of poems, super short stories or micro tales. Who are we? How did we get here? Where have we been? What do we want to leave for those who will come behind us? How are we shaped by our struggle and the lives of those who came before us? We each possess a unique story to tell. We live in turbulent times. We are affected by race, class, gender, violence and politics. We will share our words and personal narratives, and hope that by sharing our stories we will: dispel stereotypes, begin healing, dismantling segregation and oppression, and begin engaging in conversations around our challenges, and how we can move forward.”

Angie

Poetry has been used to inspire and rally people around civil liberties and civil rights since the earlier days of the United States.

“If you look back over the past 100 years, you can see how vital poetry has been in the movement for peace and social justice.” Matthew Rothschild, Senior Editor at The Progressive, text from a speech delivered to the Wisconsin Fellowship of Poets, November 3, 2012, in Stevens Point, WI.

Can 30 Seconds Change A Life? Public Service Announcements 101

A Public Service Announcement (PSA) or Community Service Announcement (CSA) is a non-commercial advertisement typically on radio or television, ostensibly broadcast for the public interest. PSAs and CSAs can take on a variety of topics, including the most common type of PSA – safety or health awareness messages informing or educating about local or national issues. PSAs are employed by a variety of agenda-oriented groups, including religious institutions and the armed services, which use PSAs to help generate publicity and spread their message. Additionally, TV and radio stations often air PSAs to exhibit their commitment or allegiance to a particular cause, i.e. community involvement or public initiatives.

The Ad Council, the largest producer of PSAs in the country, is a think-tank that has produced memorable PSA slogans such as “A mind is a terrible thing to waste” and “Friends don’t let friends drive drunk.” Perhaps more importantly, their work has produced statistics indicating that PSAs can effectively reach an audience. During the first 18 months of an Ad Council mentoring campaign, over 6,000 children were paired with mentors. Also, safety belt usage is up from 14% to 79% since their safety belt campaign launched in 1985. With effective messaging and reach, a PSA campaign can go a long way in swaying public opinion.

Things To Consider When Watching A PSA
-What were your thoughts and feelings while watching/listening?
-What emotional response did the PSA try to evoke?
-What message(s) were created or conveyed?
-Do you believe the message?

Making Effective Community Messages
There is no single recipe for making a good PSA, much in the same way there is no single way of telling a good story. A quality PSA comes from inspiration, which is difficult to categorize. However, the following guidelines might act as a helpful platform to deliver message effectively and clearly:
Choose a clearly defined topic to address. You want your listener to pull away a definite message from your PSA. Focus.

Pick a topic you care about. If you are not invested in your topic, it will be clear in the final product. Invest.

Once you have your issue narrowed down, tell a compelling story – open your listener’s eyes to a new perspective. While this issue may be an important topic in your life, it may not be for your listener. Share.

Use narrative, statistics, research, humor, drama, a slogan, or whatever you feel most effectively argues your point. Inform your listener and draw an emotional response. Use the tools you know how to use best. Express.

Take your time. Practice and record as much as you can. Your message isn’t good if it doesn’t sound good. Refine.

Potential Topics

School Issues: School Dress Code, School Cell Phone Policy, Police in the Classroom, Police Presence in Schools

Milwaukee Issues: Racial Profiling, Age Profiling, Segregation, Community Violence, Access to Jobs, Transportation (MCTS), Paid Sick Days, Privatization of Water

Software Resources

Don’t have a studio? Don’t fret. There is plenty of free and open source software out there. If you have a message, you can find a way to deliver that message.

Video: Microsoft Movie Maker and iMovie come free with new Apple and Windows machines. You can also research Avid FreeDV, Zwei-Stein or Wax.

Audio: There are a ton of these out there, including Garage Band for Apple. Also, check out Audacity.

Distribution: Use whatever you can – youtube.com, facebook.com, twitter.com, start a blog, start a podcast. Distribution is easier than it has ever been.

What is Bullying?
Bullying is a widespread and serious problem that can happen anywhere. It is not a phase that children or young adults have to go through, it is not "just messing around," and it is not something to grow out of. Bullying can cause serious and lasting harm.

Although definitions of bullying vary, most agree that bullying involves:
- Imbalance of power: people who bully use their power to control or harm and the people being bullied may have a hard time defending themselves
- Intent to cause harm: actions done by accident are not bullying; the person bullying has a goal to cause harm
- Repetition: incidents of bullying happen to the same the person over and over by the same person or group

Types of Bullying
An act of bullying may fit into more than one of these groups:
- Verbal: name-calling, teasing
- Social: spreading rumors, leaving people out on purpose, breaking up friendships
- Physical: hitting, punching, shoving
- Cyberbullying: using the Internet, mobile phones or other digital technologies to harass others

Freedom of Expression vs. Bullying and Harassment
Freedom of Speech is guaranteed by the First Amendment and protects what you say, what you write, and how you organize with others. Public schools may, however, regulate the “time, place and manner” of exercising these free speech rights, particularly when the speech falls within one of three categories:
- It is legally “obscene”
- It is libelous or slanderous (writing or saying something that you know, or should know, is untrue, and that harms someone’s reputation)
- It creates an immediate danger (and causes students to commit an act that is unlawful or against school rules or causes a substantial disruption)

Harassment is conduct (both physical and verbal) that is intentionally intimidating or demeaning on the basis of sex, race, ethnicity, sexual orientation, gender identity, disability, religion, and other categories and that interferes with a student’s educational benefits, opportunities, performance, or physical or psychological well-being.

Schools have a duty to maintain a safe environment for all students and must stop acts of harassment.

Sources: StopBullying.gov; “You Have the Right to… Not Remain Silent” by the ACLU of Northern California
Cyberbullying, instead of happening face-to-face, happens through the use of technology such as computers, cell phones and other electronic devices.

Examples of cyberbullying include:
- Sending hurtful, rude, or mean text messages to others
- Spreading rumors or lies about others by e-mail or on social networks
- Creating websites, videos or social media profiles that embarrass, humiliate, or make fun of others

When Bullying May Be a Civil Rights Violation

Schools that receive federal funding (including colleges and universities) are required by federal law to address discrimination on a number of different personal characteristics. The statutes the Department of Education’s Office for Civil Rights (OCR) enforces include:
- Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (Title VI), which prohibits discrimination on the basis of race, color, or national origin;
- Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 (Title IX), which prohibits discrimination on the basis of sex;
- Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (Section 504); and Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (Title II). Section 504 and Title II prohibit discrimination on the basis of disability.

School districts may violate these civil rights statutes and the U.S. Department of Education’s implementing regulations when peer harassment based on race, color, national origin, sex, or disability is sufficiently serious that it creates a hostile environment and such harassment is encouraged, tolerated, not adequately addressed, or ignored by school employees.

While current laws enforced by OCR do not protect against harassment based on religion or sexual orientation, they do include protection against harassment of members of religious groups based on shared ethnic characteristics as well as gender-based and sexual harassment of gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgender individuals. A school is responsible for addressing harassment incidents about which it knows or reasonably should have known.

How to Handle a Bully
- Try to use humor to diffuse the situation.
- Resist the urge to get “EVEN” and become a bully yourself.
- Print out and save anything negative you see about you on the internet for evidence in case problems persist.
- Use the Ignore or Block Sender button to ignore comments from undesired users.
- SPEAK UP! Tell your favorite teacher or counselor or anyone who will listen about what’s going on!
- Report your story to cyberbullyingreport.com (a free service available to anyone with a valid email address)

How To Prevent Bullying
Bullying is less likely to occur when there are strong messages against it. Work with your campus, community, or other groups to create and support these messages by:
- Getting involved with your community and around campus to find ways to prevent bullying.
- Creating an assembly, performance, or event to spread the message.
- Teaching others that bullying is not okay and that they can stop bullying before it begins.

Special thanks to stopbullying.gov for information.
Bystanders have the power to play a key role in preventing or stopping bullying.

Negative Bystanders

- Supporters encourage the bullying by laughing, cheering, or making comments that further stimulate the bully.
- While Followers join in the bullying once it has begun.
- Disengaged Onlookers passively support and accept bullying by watching and doing nothing. Often without realizing it, these bystanders also contribute to the problem. Passive bystanders provide the audience a bully craves and the silent acceptance that allows bullies to continue their hurtful behavior.

Positive Bystanders

- Some Defenders directly intervene, by discouraging the bully, defending the victim, or redirecting the situation away from bullying.
- While Indirect Defenders get help by rallying support from peers to stand up against bullying or by reporting the bullying to adults.

If the bullying gets worse and you need additional help, consider the following if:

Related behaviors that don’t fit the definition of bullying:

Hazing: the imposition of strenuous, often humiliating, tasks as part of an initiation.

Teen Dating Violence: Psychological/emotional, physical or sexual violence within a current, or past, dating relationship

Gang Violence: a group of people that claims control of an area, have a code of conduct and a leader, and engage in collective or individual violence.

Stalking: repeatedly following and harassing a person.

Bullying is not:

- A single episode of social rejection or dislike
- Random acts of aggression or intimidation
- Mutual arguments, disagreements or fights
- Making a complain about another student if through appropriate methods

The Bigger Picture

Does community violence affect bullying? What about socio-economical conditions?

Why do some countries/communities have more bullying than others?

Even though bullying has being analyzed extensively, in different contexts, we still lack the deep understanding of why bullying is higher in certain areas/communities/countries than others.

Recent reports indicate that the higher than wealth gap among community members the higher the incidents of bullying.

What's YOUR take on it?

Parents, Guardians and Students:

Young people have the right to access to an adequate education. I use the phrase, "adequate education" because it is guaranteed by the state constitution.

Your child does not have to talk to law enforcement - for any reason - without you there. He/she doesn't have to sign or write an account of anything either. He/she should ask for you to be there as often as he/she has to, regardless of perceived or threatened consequences.

When communicating with the school, we encourage you to send correspondence and requests for information, such as a request for the school to detail what responses or investigations it is conducting in this area, in writing! This may be very important later. Keep copies of all correspondence too.

What can you do?
Think about times you’ve been offended by a hurtful comment someone has said. Often when we hear these comments we freeze and don’t know what to say. We feel angry and speak angrily to others.

In this workshop, you’ll learn rules, goals and tools to help you defuse hurtful situations.

Oppression is a system of structured dis-equality where the goods, services, rewards, privileges and benefits of the society are available to individuals according to their presumed membership in social identity groups. This system of dis-equality of dis-equal allocation of resources is supported and reinforced by the power structure (money, military, police, etc.) of the society. (Barbara J. Love, 1994. “Understanding Internalized Oppression”)

Power + Privilege + Prejudice = Oppression

Social power means access to resources that enhance one’s power, including the power to name and define standards. We use our social power to get the things we want. In analyzing race issues, it is important to think about who has the power in the situation.

Privilege allows the dominant group greater access or availability to resources, status or immunity because of their membership in a particular group. The dominant group’s way of thinking and living is seen as the norm against which all others are compared. Life is structured around those norms for the benefit of the dominant group, e.g., steps outside and inside buildings are commonplace; airplane seats and seatbelts are standard size; school classes are taught at pre-determined levels. (Lutheran Human Relations Association)

Prejudice includes attitudes or opinions based on pre-judgment; often based on beliefs rooted in stereotypes or from insufficient information or misinformation or missing information. Prejudice can result in a set of negative beliefs, generalized about a whole group of people.

We invite you to look at oppression and how you can interrupt it at Everytown Wisconsin.

How to conduct a circle with your family and/or friends!

1. Select a talking piece, a candle (use flameless candles in public spaces) and a quiet comfortable place to hold your circle.
2. Select a date/time that works for all participants (allow 1 ½ hours – 2 hours for this circle) *time can be adjusted for shorter gatherings
3. Invite at least 4 participants (minimum of 4 people not including yourself)
4. Select an opening verse (i.e. a brief meaningful poem or statement that connects everyone)
5. Select a topic from the list below
   - Education
   - Love
   - Family meals
   - Listening
   - Money
   - Addictions/Substance Abuse
   - Violence – Fair & Unfair Fighting
   - Secrets
   - Hopes & Dreams
   - Relationships
   - Future Goals
6. Select a game to play (i.e. Feelings Charades) – be sure your game relates to your topic!
7. Prepare/gather all materials for your circle, game and activity.
8. Prepare 3 questions that invite story sharing for each go-around (see examples below)
   - Tell about a Time when you felt proud of something someone accomplished in this circle….
   - Tell about a Time when someone in this circle made you smile…
   - Tell about a Time when you felt heard, and needed to talk to someone in this circle listened…
9. Select a closing exercise/activity (i.e. Each participant writes 1 hope/wish/goal for your family on note cards and place them on fridge).
10. Select closing verse (i.e. Our closing verse)
11. Have each participant complete the participant feedback form!
12. Complete Circle Keeper Journal Reflection Form!

The People’s Bandwidth

Hey, How Do I Make These Things?

Materials List:

1) corrugated plastic (“coroplast”) which can be purchased in 4x8 sheets at plastics wholesale/retail stores, or through sign shops. This is strong and light and waterproof and very easy to cut and drill. (One could use any drill-able surface, but watch the weight for field carrying. Pegboard is a possibility, and would be very convenient for a large stationary sign.) We got ours at a regional plastics manufacturer, Midland Plastics. Be aware that “coroplast” is a specific brand, but most people call all corrugated plastic “coroplast.”

2) LED Christmas lights: battery powered for field use or plug-in light strings for stationary settings. We shopped around, and these Sylvania lights are the best, available from True Value. Best price, too. Sometimes you can find similar items offered very cheaply on eBay. Note: other battery-operated LED light strings work fine, though you might have to adjust hole size and on/off switch specs to fit.
3) 3/4” x 1.25” pine (dimensions could vary) for framing sign.

4) Liquid Nails (“Heavy Duty Construction” on label).

5) Various tools: hand drill bit - size for lights to fit snugly in (we used 1/4”, but this would vary according to your lights), tape measure, velcro, 3/4” (#10) wood screws, awl or nail for poking holes.

You will get cleaner results if you print your letters to size. Use a simple font - we use Arial Narrow. The print does not need to be on good paper or good quality. You can “tile” a print on small paper if you don’t have access to larger prints. Some folks have projected letters onto the board, some have done it freehand. Once printed, we mark out the holes. We place our lights at approximately 1.25 inch intervals. Once marked, we lightly poke through and thus transfer the layout marks to the plastic sheet.

You are now ready to drill the holes. Obviously, put something under the plastic to protect your tabletop. Test that your drill hole is the proper size for your lights to fit snugly into. It is worth noting that we use a wood-working drill bit known as a “Forstner bit.” This is not a normal twist-drill bit. It cuts very clean holes by cutting the circumference first.
Next come the lights. These are battery operated (4 AA batteries) and seem to last for quite a while. They have some automatic timer which we don’t use, but could be cool for stationary use. Regular plug-in lights would work as well - more colors, blink, etc., but would only be good for stationary use. If you had a small “boat” style battery with an inverter, you can install them on a vehicle (a hassle, but could have great application on a cart, boat or bicycle.) There are many brands of these available at Amazon and eBay. They are generally cheap and made in China (alas!). Be sure to get LED strings; they use very little power. (see list in back for other suggestions. Some lights are hard to find when not in the holiday season.)

Gluing the lights into the holes. They “hand fit” in snugly enough to stay, but the glue is to get them field-worthy. This job is the worst part of the process. I squish the Liquid Nails out on to a plate, and use a little micro-spatula (any little blade would do, but a little “oil painter’s” palette knife works great!) to apply the glue around the lights.

Setting them in is like a puzzle. If you want to think about how to get from one letter to the next, if you need to skip a light (no hole nearby) merely tape it with electrical tape. This makes sense when you do it. Also we have found that “hopsotchting” by skipping every other hole out to an end of a letter (for instance, the upper part of a “Y”) and then hopsotchting back means you don’t saw lots of unused lights in the string. Works great!

You’ll use lots of Liquid Nails the lights onto/into the holes. It is easy to do if the lights are firmly placed into the correct sized hole, and it is a bit tedious to do them all. I set down 2 “spacers boards” on my work table so the lights don’t hit the surface of the table.

The boxes are the battery packs for each string. We attached them on to the plastic sheet at convenient places. Note two other things in this picture:

Our lights have a little “push” on/off switch. We drilled hole on the sheet plastic and placed the switch right behind that hole. A pencil can turn on/off each string of lights from the front.

5 light strings = 5 holes. Plug in lights could avoid this, and be all strung together with only 1 cord coming out.

On/off hole in front of sign. Easy and works well! (use pencil eraser to push)

The Overpass Light Brigade

Founded in Milwaukee in 2011, the Overpass Light Brigade is a loose group of volunteers—activists, workers, teachers, parents, students, retirees—who come together to create community action in public space using open-source, low-tech illuminated signs invented and developed by Lisa Moline and Lane Hall. Falling somewhere between netroots activism, relational art, street theater, embodied poetry, and direct political action, members of OLB build meaningful relationships across communities while giving visibility to progressive causes.

STREET ART 101:
HOW TO MAKE A WHEAT PASTE POSTER

MAKING THE WHEAT PASTE

YOU WILL NEED:
- Whole wheat flour
- Water
- A pot for boiling water
- 2 containers

1. Measure out a 1:4 ratio of wheat flour/water, and place them in separate containers.
2. Add water to pot and boil.
3. Once the water reaches boiling, pour wheat flour into pot and stir thoroughly. Make sure you don't have any flour balls or lumps in the mixture.
4. Once the wheat paste reaches a smooth and glue-like consistency, turn off heat and pour the paste into a separate container.

* Add a little sugar for extra stickiness
* Use the wheat paste as soon as possible. If you plan on waiting a day or two, store in the refrigerator.

MAKING A POSTER

YOU WILL NEED:
- Paper
- Oil-based markers
- Nothing tape
- Utility knife

1. Making a big drawing? If you don't have a large sheet of paper, you can tape computer paper to betther into one sheet to form one large piece of paper. Don't overlap the edges.
2. On the other side, draw your design. Don't make the borders of your artwork too intricate because you are going to be cutting it out.
3. Using a scissors, xacto knife or razor, cut out the design.

NOT GOOD AT DRAWING? You can print out images from a computer and design something using a photo-editing program, or you can just print out text.

PASTING THE POSTER

YOU WILL NEED:
- A bucket or container holding your wheat paste
- Paintbrush or paint roller

1. Find a smooth or semi-smooth wall surface that is big enough for your artwork. Concrete surfaces work best.

WARNING! BE AWARE OF THE LEGAL RISKS OF PLACING STREET ART ON PUBLIC/PRIVATE PROPERTY. You can get fined or worse if you get caught and wheat paste paste on.

2. Prepare the surface by applying a layer of wheat paste.
3. Place your artwork on top of the wet surface.
4. Apply a layer of wheat paste on top of the artwork until it is soaked.

LET IT DRY FOR A FEW HOURS

Idle No More was launched by four women, community activists, in Canada during the hunger strike of Chief Therese Spence in 2012 because of how the Government had been eluding the treaty rights. Naturally, Wisconsin heard the call to join in solidarity for Wisconsin Tribes and Communities which continue to suffer the same mistreatment of human rights by our Government—both local and federal. IdleNoMore is a Peaceful Movement of Integrity and Honor with a concrete focus to protect our lands, water and the trust and agreement inclusions of sovereignty rights for a quality of life for our future generations.

It’s been said that “The only thing we learn from history is that we learn nothing from history” and the current mining bills before the Wisconsin state legislature would perpetuate a long, tragic, and shameful history of U.S. treaty violations with Indigenous Peoples.—The 7th Generation has begun.

Idle No More calls on all people to join in a revolution which honors and fulfills Indigenous sovereignty which protects the land and water. The movement wants to stop the government from passing more laws and legislation that will further erode treaty and indigenous rights and the rights of all Indigenous people globally. - We are in Solidarity with Canada, Minnesota, Michigan, and Wisconsin to Idle No More, Protect our Lands and Water. Sisters and Brothers leading Idle No More Wisconsin are: Rachel Byington, Choctaw Nation of Oklahoma; Arvina Marin, Ho Chunk Nation; Diana Miller, Menominee Nation; Sarah LittleRedfeather, decent of the Anishinaabe, MN Chippewa Band - White Earth; Sanford LittleEagle, Ho Chunk Nation; and Chuck Davis, Sr.

Violence is defined by the World Health Organization as “the intentional use of physical force or power, threatened or actual, against oneself, another person, or against a group or community, which either results in or has a high likelihood of resulting in injury, death, psychological harm, maldevelopment, or deprivation.”

Violence against Women (abbreviated VAW) is a term used to collectively refer to violent acts that are primarily or exclusively committed against women.

Teen dating violence (TDV) is a pattern of behavior that includes physical, emotional, verbal or sexual abuse used by one person in an intimate relationship to exert power and control over another. TDV is generally defined as occurring among individuals between the ages of 13-19 years old.

Interpersonal Violence is an act by one or more people that physically or mentally hurts or damages another person or people.

Systemic Violence are conditions in society that prevent people from developing their full human potential.

Rape Culture is our culture, it is the culture in which 1 in 4 women are subject to sexual abuse, a culture in which rape is pervasive and normalized due to societal attitudes about gender, sex, and sexuality.

Patriarchy is a system of society or government in which men hold the power and women are largely excluded from it.

Sexism is discrimination based on gender, especially discrimination against women. It is a systematic form of oppression in which masculinity is valued over femininity, where men dominate and hold power.

Intersectionality is the study of intersections (crossroads) between forms or systems of oppression, domination or discrimination.

Reproductive Justice is the complete physical, mental, spiritual, political, social, and economic well-being of women and girls, based on the full achievement and protection of women’s human rights. (http://www.protectchoice.org/section.php?id=28)

Media is the main means of mass communication (especially television, radio, newspapers, and the Internet) regarded collectively.
Dating Abuse

Dating abuse is a controlling behavior in which a partner uses to gain power over the other partner. There are 3 main types:

- Physical: 1 in 11
- Emotional: 1 in 5
- Sexually: 1 in 3

1/3 of high school students have been in an abusive relationship.

80% of girls who have been abused keep dating their abuser.

1 in 4 teens who have been in a serious relationship say that they have been pressured to only spend time with their partner.

Lack of Awareness

Only 67% of adolescents who were abused in a relationship tell someone.

81% of parents believe teen dating abuse is not an issue.

80% of teens believe teen dating abuse is a serious issue.

February is national Teen Dating Abuse Awareness Month.

Printmaking, Art & Activism

Very often young people, women, people of color, people not in the "upper classes," and anyone else not in positions of power are unable to get access to media or put their views out to the broader public. Printmaking, posters, stencils and art are long standing ways to get the word out and make people notice meetings, missions, achievements, and heroes. The poster has been around since the beginning of the 1800s. They were usually printed by wood block or metal and they weren’t very colorful.

They were used to advertise dance halls, clubs, and burlesque. In the late 1800s posters really became popular in France and this catapulted their use across the world. Posters and prints were used ubiquitously and as propaganda all through the Russian Revolution, the Spanish Civil War, World War I, World War II. By the 1960s, the hippie, psychedelic, anti-war, Black Panther and other many other movements used posters for promotion of ideas, recruitment, etc. This competed with the wholesale commercialized use of posters by ad agencies and movies that occurred in the 1950s and continues today.

Posters and prints are an important and popular part of the art landscape and are effective tools for messaging and promotion.

- 1960s-80s, women’s rights, disability rights, civil rights, gay rights, and anti-war movements used screen printing and mimeographs to create their own buttons, signs, and t-shirts, which included lots of striking graphics.

- Television and the Internet have made our society more visually-saturated. The corporatization of media has widened the gap between high-budget production and local, grassroots efforts.

This workshop emphasizes poster design principles; developing poster concepts; presenting your poster; understanding your audience; and evaluating a poster.

There are many printing processes that can be used for making dynamic imagery. Wood block printing and linocuts both have an aesthetic that is unique to the practice of printmaking. However, they necessitate owning or having access to a printing press. Many artists choose use cheaper more accessible forms of printing like screen printing or stencil printing.

For this workshop we will be making stencils. All you need to create your imagery is an exacto knife and a piece of transparent paper. Mylar and duralar both work well and can be bought frosted or translucent. Once you have cut your image out of the transparent paper you can apply your image to any number of surfaces using any number of mediums. People apply stencils with mud, spray paint, marker, paint etc.
